

PHILBIN BOMB TO SHAKE UP POLICE.

An Extraordinary Grand Jury to Consider Evidence in Vice Crusade.

Those familiar with the workings within the Criminal Courts Building know that it is very probable that District Attorney Philbin will impel an extraordinary Grand Jury for the month of April and May.

This extraordinary Grand Jury will have submitted for its consideration the great mass of evidence which the Committee of Five and Fifteen have secured against the police in their hunt for knowledge as to the existence of vice in the city.

This evidence has been submitted to District Attorney Philbin daily, and with his assistance he has winnowed up all the chaff and will present to the extraordinary Grand Jury clear cases against at least four police captains.

In short, the wise ones say that Mr. Philbin is prepared to give the Police Department the stiffest argument it ever went against. It is not unlikely that charges will also be prepared against Commissioner Murphy and his Deputy, Devery.

The four police captains named are Albertson, whom Devery denounced as a coward yesterday; Westervelt, in whose precinct the Purple Club was located; Donohue and Thomas, who have also been derelict.

Mr. Philbin has been in communication with Gov. Odell some time, and while the exact nature of the subject under discussion has not been made public it is known that the police form a large portion of it.

Mr. Philbin desires that he be asked for the removal of Commissioner Murphy. He was asked today if his communications to Gov. Odell were concerning the calling of an extraordinary Grand Jury. He refused to deny that this was so, and when asked to affirm he avoided the question.

Devery, who is the Criminal Courts Building is convinced that something is on, and that Mr. Philbin is denouncing his hunting dress in the expectation of bagging big game.

It will be remembered that the District Attorney has a precedent in the Lexow committee investigation. An Extraordinary Grand Jury was called immediately after the investigations made by this committee.

DRUG-CRAZED COLUMBIA STUDENT FIRED AT ACTRESS, SHOT TWO MEN.

my back to the crowd and the ladies were facing me. We stopped slowly. "About 1 o'clock we were thinking of leaving," Mr. Dinkwell began. "We opened another bottle of wine and were chatting gayly when I heard a commotion in the cafe. As I turned to look, there was Moulton bearing down on us a wild look in his eyes and a revolver in his hand.

"Before I had time to realize there was danger he shot, and I felt myself struck under the right arm. He shot again, and Dinkwell clapped his hand to his waist. The third shot came the next second, and Dinkwell winced when the bullet hit him in the shoulder.

Miss Buckley's Narrow Escape.

"It takes time to tell all this, but it was quick as thought. We had sprung to our feet. The man was almost upon us. His weapon was leveled directly at Miss Buckley's head as he was about to shoot a fourth time, but we threw ourselves upon him and Dinkwell reached him in time to strike down his hand, and the bullet passed through her skirt.

"We grappled with him, and the revolver went off a fifth time. Then the waiters came and the fellow was hustled out. Proprietor M. J. Reagan, of the Pabst Hotel, drove to the West Forty-seventh Street station and detailed the occurrence to Sgt. Shields. Detective Kammer was sent to the Hotel to take charge of Moulton, who had been held by the hotel detective.

Pockets Full of Drugs.

In his pockets besides the revolver were a bottle of 1-grain morphine pills, a bottle of morphine powder and a solution of the drug in a two-ounce bottle, over half of which had been consumed. He had a cheap gun-metal watch and pawn tickets for a gold watch and chain, a diamond ring and several articles of clothing. He had $2 and a five-cent check for the box he had returned at the Broadway.

He also had memoranda relating to the location of pool-rooms in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore. There was a torn photograph of Miss Buckley and some private papers.

His Check Victims.

Moulton is the son of a well-known Tennessee family. He admits to a morphine habit. Some time ago he attended Dr. Wright's school for six months. In West Seventy-sixth street, near Columbus avenue, while there he learned life-saving and made the acquaintance of many persons throughout the State, who have had cause since to regret their confidence in him.

Dr. James E. Newcomb, on whom he passed a forged check for $20,000, received letters from friends in Elmira, N. Y., Boston, Buffalo and other cities in which Moulton has played the same trick.

While Moulton attended the school of architecture at Columbia he was a leader in the dramatic club, and his burlesque and musical skills were performed with success. It was through his endeavors in this line that he gained admission to the Players Club.

He is twenty-five years old, above medium height, rather good looking and his hair is distinctly wavy. When arrested he was in evening dress. He was in Boston up to two weeks ago. He is registered at the Criterion Hotel and has been enjoying the pleasures of Broadway.

Miss Seligman, whose name was permitted to be connected with the shooting until late afternoon, was seen at her residence at 52 West Twenty-fifth street, and denied emphatically that she was in Pabst's Raths Keller when the tragedy occurred. She was seen in the theatre in company with her sister and the latter's husband, and the latter's name was also excluded from the arena and was excluded from the scene.

lived. For a little over a year they lived together, first at the St. George Hotel, Brooklyn, then at No. 315 West 125th street, and later at No. 315 West 125th street, Manhattan.

A separation finally came and a little less than two years ago Mrs. Glue sued for divorce, and her application was granted.

After that time Glue became a well-known figure about the gay part of New York city. He spent a large part of his time in the Waldorf Palm Garden and at other places where life is to be seen in its most joyous aspect.

Sexton and Glue Friends.

Sexton and Glue had been friends for years. It is said that the former Commissioner first met his wife through his friend Glue. He has been devoted to her since she obtained her divorce.

Glue is at present abroad. He left six months ago to visit his parents, who it is said, were never acquainted with the fact that he was married. Ten days ago he was in Hamburg, from which city he wrote to a friend here that he would return in a few weeks.

Glue is a well-known and important of the marriage of his former wife to his friend Sexton.

Mr. Glue has two partners in his commission business, Geo. Green and Vittorio Balest.

"I can't understand," said Mr. Balest, "how the impression got about that Glue was dead. Who started that report? Why he is the liveliest dead man on earth. I had a letter from him a few days ago and he said he would be in New York in the latter part of April. I shall say to be thirty, and perhaps he hasn't bowed all his wild oats yet."

Mr. Sexton Silent.

A reporter of the Evening World called upon Mr. Sexton at the Health Board this afternoon to get his version of the question now brooding.

"As I have said before, I will not discuss my marriage," said Mr. Sexton as soon as the question was brooded.

"Was it with your knowledge that the fact concerning your wife's divorce was kept from the press who performed the ceremony?" was asked.

"I repeat, I will not say one word about my marriage."

RUSSIANS PULL UP STAKES.

All Evidence of Dispute at Tientsin Removed.

TIENTSIN, March 22.—The Russians, besides withdrawing their guards from the railroad property, have removed the demarcation flags which fixed the boundary of the concession and before which the sentries were stationed.

Gen. Bullard (French) and Gen. Lorne Campbell (British) are dining together this evening. The offending French soldiers at Tientsin have been given that the offensive conduct of the French troops will not occur again.

TWO PRINCETON BOYS PUNISHED.

Insulters of Girl Fined After a Sound Thashing.

Special to The Evening World.—TRENTON, N. J., March 22.—Submerged and pent-up, W. L. Brokaw and Stephen Harmon, the two Princeton students who were beaten by citizens of this place last night because one proposed an indecent toast to the father of Miss Alice La Rue, were arraigned today before Judge Jackson.

The courtroom was crowded with friends of Mr. La Rue, Threshers were made against the students, and it was only the presence of a half dozen policemen that prevented another fight when they walked out of court, both having been fined $25 each and one held in $500 bail for further examination.

Miss Alice La Rue, over whom the fight was about, did not appear in court. Her father, who is a very stable keeper, was the complainant.

"I was in the Alhambra restaurant," he told the Magistrate, "when these men came in. Brokaw, whom I have never seen before, came to me with a drink in his hand and said 'Here's to Alice La Rue.' The rest of the toast was too indecent for me to repeat. I told him that he would get into trouble."

"Then he took off his coat and started to throw me. My friends stood by and we came to it to them until they fled across the street, when they were arrested."

"I don't remember what happened," Brokaw said.

The Magistrate fined him at $25 for Brokaw and fined him $25, and Harmon got off with a simple fine of $25.

Henry Stafford Little, recently made a trustee of Princeton, paid the fine of both men and also gave $50 for Brokaw's appearance. The two students then hurried away on the first train to Princeton.

Brokaw's eyes were black and blue and his nose was lacerated with a handkerchief. His lips were badly cut and one knuckle of his hand swollen. He is 6 feet in height and weighs about 160 pounds.

He is the left and on the Princeton football team. His parents are wealthy and live in New Brunswick. Harmon is also a big man. He did not fare so badly as his companion, but nevertheless was roughly used. All that he would say was "Never again."

Miss La Rue appeared on the streets after the students had left. She is a pretty brunette, twenty years old, has brown hair and wears glasses.

"I don't know these men," Miss La Rue said. "I know lots and lots of students, but not these two."

"I did not go to the station-house," Brokaw or Harmon, she continued. "I was at a party all the evening and knew nothing about the matter until I came home."

Miss La Rue is twenty years old, used to ride a horse about the streets, using a man's saddle. She is, because of her beauty, very popular.

Mr. La Rue said today that he proposed to follow the trouble to the end and is consulting a lawyer with a view to bringing suit for damages.

NEVER BEFORE CALLED COWARD.

Capt. Albertson Indignant but Powerless Under the Lash.

Capt. Charles L. Albertson, of the Deane street station, was nearly in tears and embittered with chagrin today over his experience yesterday at the police trials at the hands of Deputy Commissioner William S. Devery.

He was haxed with shame because of the ignominious word "coward" hurled at him by Deputy Devery, and chagrined that a captain's rank precludes him of the right to fire back into the very teeth of the man who said "coward," the word "dare." The objectionable epithet had been used by Devery during the trial of two former wardmen, on Thursday.

Capt. Albertson was found by an Evening World reporter today.

"Are you a coward," as Deputy Commissioner Devery has branded you before your police associates and through the newspapers?" was the question put to the Captain.

"No man has ever dared to call me 'coward' until now, but I don't want to talk about this thing. I can't stand it. It's too much for me."

"What are you going to do about it? Will you appeal to some higher authority than Deputy Commissioner Devery in the way of obtaining redress, an apology, in fact, from Devery?"

"What can I do?" asked Albertson. "I am called a coward by my superior officer. This is not France or England. Capt. Albertson did not complete the sentence.

"What have you to say to Deputy Devery's remark that you are not fit to command patrolmen, Capt. Albertson?"

"I passed a creditable examination and have always done duty. I shall continue to do so it regardless of anything that may happen."

"Then you do not agree with Mr. Devery as to your ability?"

"I know I'm competent. But I'm not saying this for publication. I haven't said a word for the newspapers."

MURRAY HALL LEGALLY 'SHE'.

Petition Accompanying Will Definitely Fixes the Sex.

A petition to accompany the will of Murray H. Hall, the man-woman, was filed today in the Surrogate's office. It refers to the testator as "she" in every instance.

The petition states that Mrs. Hall left no heirs at law and directed that her estate should go to Imelda A. Hall, her foster daughter.

The value of the personal estate is given as $100 and the real estate also $100.
